Mina's Pinecone Feeder

- ① Mina wanted to watch birds, so she and her grandfather made a simple feeder. They tied a pinecone to a string, and then they pressed sunflower seeds into peanut butter. Because the seeds were small, chickadees could pick them up easily. Mina hung the feeder on a low branch, but she kept it away from the family cat.
- ② At first, no bird came while Mina waited by the window. She went inside after she set a timer for ten minutes. When the timer rang, a chickadee landed on the pinecone, and Mina whispered to her grandfather. Although she wanted to run closer, she stayed still because quick movements can scare birds. Soon, another chickadee arrived, so the first bird flew to a nearby twig.
- ③ The next day, Mina added fresh seeds before school. If rain fell, the feeder would get wet, so her grandfather placed a small cover above it. The cover blocked some rain, yet it left room for birds to reach the food. Mina wrote down what she saw each morning, and she planned to count the birds when she had a full week of notes.
