YOUR JOB Underline the names of Indigenous nations. Circle one detail that tells how each nation lived in the Eastern Woodlands.

Nations of the Eastern Woodlands

- ① Long before the United States began, many Indigenous nations lived in the Eastern Woodlands. This region had forests, rivers, and lakes. Nations used the land and water carefully. Indigenous people still live in these places and across the country today.
- ② The Wampanoag Nation lived near the Atlantic coast in what is now Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Families planted corn, beans, and squash. They also fished in rivers and the sea. Homes were built from wood and bark.
- ③ Haudenosaunee people lived in villages near forests and lakes in what is now New York. Their Confederacy included six nations. Several families could live in one longhouse. People grew corn, beans, and squash. They hunted deer and gathered foods from the forest.
